

Ingredients Book 2023

Food and Beverage Ingredients – Global Markets - 2022-2027

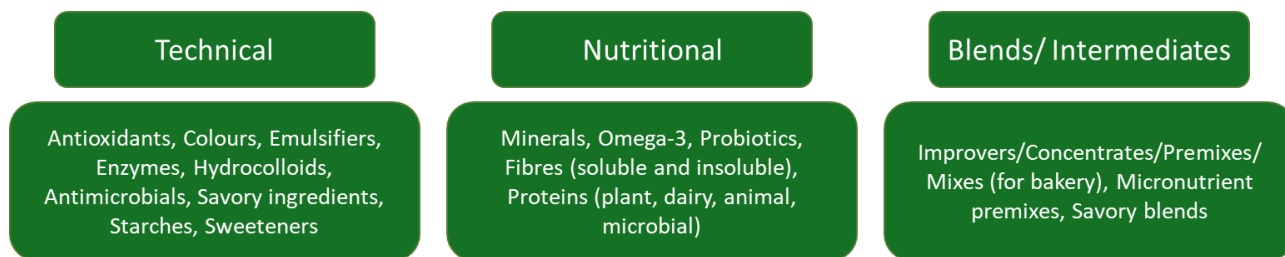

Introducing Giraact's annual overview of ingredients across world markets

Giraact has been studying the full spectrum of Food and Beverage ingredients for over 50 years. Either as agricultural raw material derivatives, secondary derivatives or synthesized products, demand for these ingredients generally shows stronger growth in demand than the underlying sector due to many areas of the world currently beginning to process their food. Even the west is slowly beginning to change the way food is processed, allowing some ingredient categories to grow faster than others. It is also possible that growth for some ingredients may be hindered, and potentially unable to fulfil demand from growing application industries in the future due to insufficient raw material availability, outdated processing technologies, legislative barriers, or a lack of synchronicity with current consumer requirements.

The book covers only food applications (bakery, confectionery, dairy and dairy alternatives, processed meat and meat alternatives, infant nutrition, beverages, other foods – sauces and seasonings, syrups and spreads, sports nutrition etc.) and the demand split for non-food applications such as pet food, animal feed, paper, etc. is not provided.
